Once I wrote a song

almost,

Sixteen lines that walked up from my belly to my head.

As I stood waiting for the light to change

and making up a melody,

a yellow bus passed by slowly.

Principal's Message

"No main is an island, entire of itself."

These lines, written by one of my favorite poets, John Donne, ring of truth and have made a lasting impression on me. I agree with Donne that each of us is inextricably involved and delicately entwined with his fellow man.

The Analogy of a spider comes to mind. All of us in the world, but especially those grouped together in a nation, community, school, or family unit, are bound by gossamer threads - webs of delicate resiliency. These webs bind us together in an inexorable fashion. Nobody is hurt or wronged without our feeling it; nobody rises without also our being pulled up. Each of us is RESPONSIVE TO and RESPONSIBLE FOR each other.

The Scona team epitomizes this concept of co-operation. From students to staff, from councils to caretakers, from pupils to principal, from academics to athletics, from artists to artisans, and from Grade X to XII, we work and play together as a team. As we pull together during each school day, each school term, and each school year, strength flows back and forth between us making each of us stronger. We fortify each other. We improve each other. We need each other.

Tremendous team effort, as evidenced at Scona, does not just happen! It takes constant sublimation of self for the more rewarding accomplishment of the success brought about by the TOTAL effort of each group, each class, or each team. Even Scona fans, who stand out at our athletic events as vibrant, wholesome, and loyal representatives of our school, put forth a resounding co-operative effort in cheering on our teams. Remember also that one hand cannot applaud - but it takes the team effort of two!

To all of you, never forget the lessons of co-operation and teamwork which you have learned so well at Scona!

Farewell to our Graduates and May God Bless You All!

Mrs. Lee Phipps
Principal

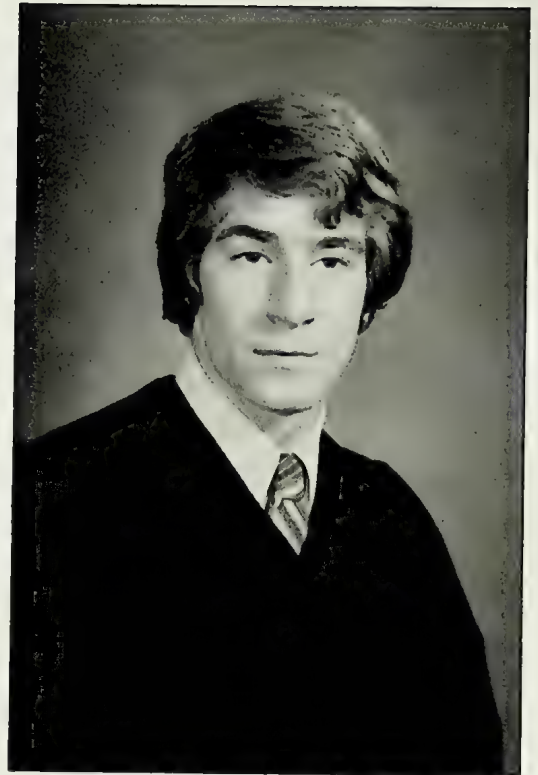

President's Message

As I look back on the past three years, I realize that calling them the good ol' days would be slightly unfair. Let's face it; if these have been the best times of our lives, what do we have to look forward to? Our dances, due to lack of interest, met an untimely demise which even "Captain Highliner" commercials could not avert. 60's day and Hallowe'en enjoyed the participation of but a die-hard few.

They were not, however, the bad ol' days. The memories we fellow students shared as we were bonded together by mutual suffering will never be forgotten. The friendships will remain as we go our different ways, each to search out our own niche in society. Those of us who played on school teams or participated in student organizations will always carry a feeling of accomplishment or camaraderie. Athletes can take with them the pride of being part of Scona's traditionally great sports clubs.

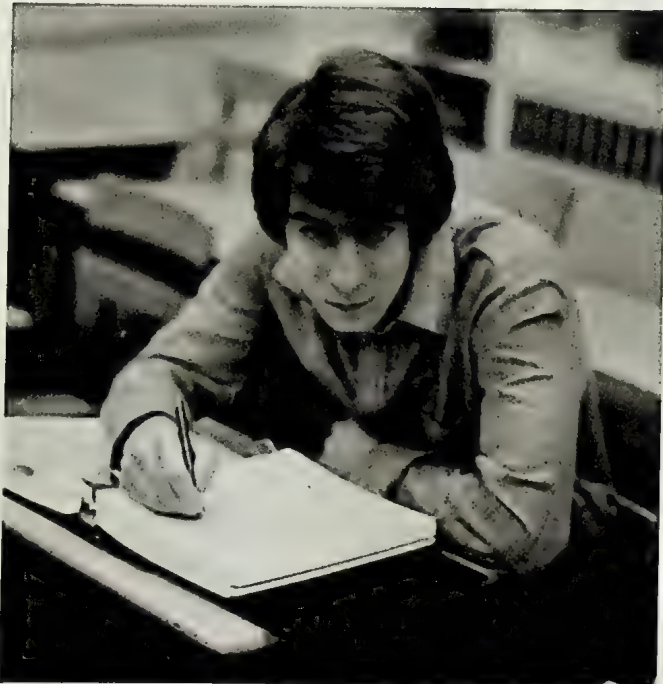

Some of us will go directly to the working world. Others will go to NAIT and still more will go to universities across the country. Wherever you may go, rest assured that Scona will stand you in good stead. There is no other school in Edmonton from which I'd rather graduate.

It's been fun guys. We should do it again sometime.

Activities

The First Week of School

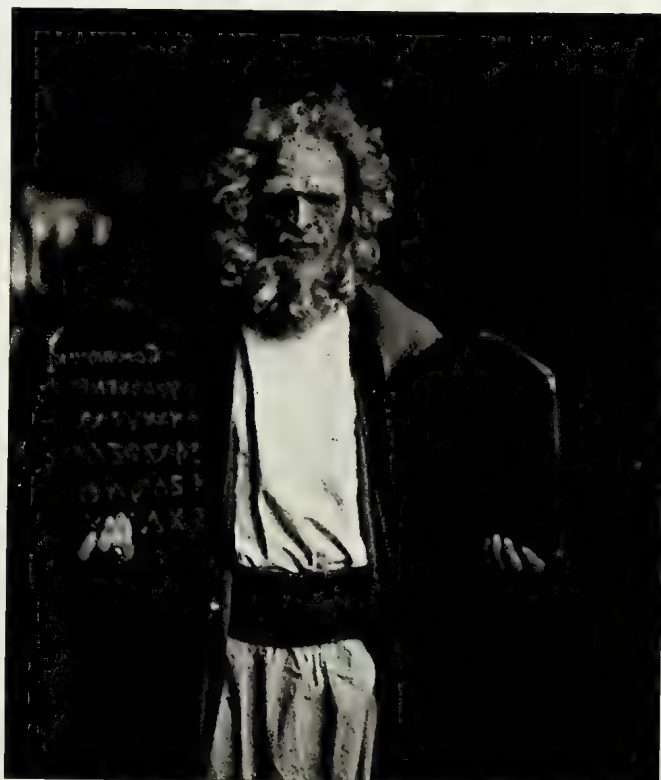

Was filled with new experiences as we welcomed the grade tens with pillow fights and a bean eating contest. Later that week the new arrivals were given a real Scona welcome with the annual frosh dance; but that wasn't before the most incredible experience that was encountered this fall - mill registration.

The Spooks that Came Back for Halloween

Everyone came out for Hallowe'en, that is anyone interested in trick and treating during the day. The night was spent dancing at the traditional Hallowe'en dance where we rocked to the sounds of Steelback.

On the last morning of school in 1980, many Scona-ites filled the gymnasium and were entertained by the participants of Scona's annual Christmas Lit. The show was enjoyed by everyone as it launched a very much deserved holiday.

Scona's Top 10's

The Mr. Scona contest was one noon hour of great fun. Angus Wyatt with his evening wear ensemble complete with his whip was crowned the winner of this delightful event. There was a guest appearance by last year's winner Scott Magee and we all learned what Chris Judge likes.

This year there were a number of dress up events that were never tried before but were very successful. Tropicana days was great fun with a costume contest and a limbo contest, everyone came out for these events. Sixties days was another dress up event that brought out the love beads and the mini skirts as they never had before. There was almost full attendance for the "Cream of the Beatles" and in all it was a good nostalgic look back.

The Lack of Talent Show

May 1st was an opportunity for amateur talent to show its truest colors. The incomparable team of Angus Wyatt and Shawn Dorby won the event with their Elvis medley.

Faces In The Crowd
 Faces rush by, hurrying on, not really Going anywhere or achieving anything.
 Just trying to seem secure; and determined,
 As if they actually have a purpose,
 (Other than self destruction).
 No one has time, to stop and realize They're wasting their time, their lives,
 Their happiness, just because they think They're too busy to slow down
 And be a person; rather than Just another face
 In the rushing crowd.

We've lived our lives through tears and thorns;

Through rain and storms;
But though the road's been hard and long,
We're made it through Together as one.

But our hopes will live
And you, my friend,

Life is to live,
And love never dies.

Valedictory 1981

Parents, teachers, honored guests, and fellow graduates. Graduation affords us a brief moment not only to celebrate our accomplishments, but also to consider the opportunities available to us in the future. For the completion of twelve years of schooling is often synonymous with the change from adolescence to adulthood. This argument, if well-founded, leaves us, the graduates of 1981, with the privilege of establishing ourselves as viable, contributing members of the society.

Strathcona, in fulfilling its purpose, has influenced and taught all of us. Yet, apart from the educational and involving textbooks, another more important development has occurred. For each of us has adopted a personal set of values. Whether it be money, prestige, or a family, these priorities will play a role in determining the path that each of us takes. Exactly what we choose in itself may not be so important, as long as these are tempered with integrity. In order to realize our ambitions, we will have to strive as individuals to some degree. It is said that talent develops in solitude, but that character is developed in society. If we work in a cooperative spirit with the rest of the community, our efforts will not only benefit others, but at the same time will cultivate such character in ourselves.

Certainly each of us shall feel some degree of regret as we leave this school. No longer will we have the support and shelter that we have accustomed ourselves to. We will finally become part of the world that we have so arduously studied. From the independence that accompanies this change, however, will stem our maturity. Nevertheless, as we assimilate and become more deeply involved in our own affairs, we mustn't forget to thank our parents and teachers for their guidance and dedication. Their success is brilliantly reflected in each of our numerous successes.

As diversified as this year's graduation class is, one common denominator continues to affirm our unity, and that, is friendship. One cannot measure fully the importance of the human relationship, for its rewards are often tangible only to the mind. Yet, as precious as they are, friendships are mistreated in today's transient world. The benefits of human contact and communication are also many times taken for granted. If we take care to preserve and enlarge our friendships through mutual sharing, we will never be alone.

Finally, each of us must contemplate the events of the future. Inevitably, we will be met by a barrage of choices and responsibilities, but by no means does this process have to be painful. For through our exposure to new learning situations, we have been prepared to surmount these challenges; and even if we falter in pursuit of our own ends, it will be no dishonor. For if we continue to learn, we will succeed.

Thank you.

Salman Qureshi

Class History 1981

Students, fellow graduates, teachers, ladies and gentlemen, boys, girls, and Mrs. Phipps. Hello. Standing here looking at all your faces, wiping the sweat from my brow, I begin to remember things that have happened over the past three years.

It started, as with all high school students, with grade ten, arriving in this massive complex that they call Scona. Not wanting anyone to even think that we were scared we sauntered down the halls like we'd all been through it before, but as registration wore on the fear became more and more difficult to disguise. What with trying to figure out if Row, Gol, Gor, Pet, Pfa, and McN were good teachers, being asked for money every second table and then having to smile for some weirdo with a camera, it grew pretty frightening. Welcome week was even worse, even though hazing had been abolished there were still some naughty naughty grade twelves that didn't want to listen to Mrs. Phipps. So many choices had to be made: do you want to risk the embarrassment of dressing up for special events like Greaser days or Hallowe'en? do you want to join a club? do you want to participate in some noon hour activities? do you want to audition for a play or try out for one of the many school teams? Grade ten also brought the first annual Mr. Scona contest, lack of talent, and 50¢ texas donuts.

Grade eleven was much more relaxed; we now knew what was going on, knew what we could or supposedly could not do. For a few, and I won't mention any names, the beginning of the year also brought the fear of being hazed. Now we knew that if asked if our parents could chaperone a dance the answer was automatically "they're sick". We could participate more confidently in dress-up days, and we gradually began to find our special friends with whom we would "hang around". Smoking was banned and skipping became less of a sin, in fact, for some it became rather fun, for others it was still the booth in the library. Humour reigned not only in the Christmas lit and lack of talent show but also in practical jokes, such as toilet papering Mrs. Phipps' car or bathing someone, of sorts, in the commode.

In grade twelve, and again we won't mention any names, frosh was still a fear for a small few, but grade twelve also brought many new experiments: tropicana days, sixties days and mill registration, which for some shall we say was not highly successful. There were many failures not only exams but attendance at dances began to drop and texas donuts were an outrageous one dollar each. There was, of course, the stupendously brilliant third annual Mr. Scona contest, and finally this graduation.

All in all Scona excelled in many places; academics, athletics, fine arts, both the music, drama and art departments. Now it is true that you may forget the things that I have just mentioned, BUT who could forget: seventies revival days, of that classic VANCOUVER band Psycho OR the infamous food fight in front of the ITV cameras.

While I leave Scona with one or two regrets, who shall remain nameless, I do leave knowing that I have made new friends and an equal amount of enemies. I leave with a great deal more knowledge, and I leave knowing I have grown a little ... mentally. I also leave with memories, memories both fond and unpleasant but memories nevertheless. Thank you very much.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

In Lieu of Flowers

I remember thinking:
How cold the pavement is,
And how strange blood tastes,
And the positions I'm in must look ridiculous.
He was cradling me in his arms
And asking me if I was in pain.
I thought awhile - then answered no.
His breath was sour on my face
And made me think of the way
My bird's cage smelled when I cleaned it each Saturday morning.
His face,
twisted, puffy, and kind of red -
It made me laugh,
And then, he thought that I was crying
And he started shaking and saying
He was sorry,
He kept telling me not to die and his tears were falling on my face until I felt like yelling,
"Will you quit crying on me or I'll drown!"
but I knew it didn't matter -
I was going to die
And I thought crying was the least the dumb bastard could do After he got drunk and ruined my bicycle by hitting me with his car.

INSOMNIA

Sleep is a word I dream of in waking hours,
 while at night
 I lay in paralysis thinking of day.
 And when the sleep-laden dreams (thoughts of thinking men) visit me rooms of yawns I fail to grasp the meaning of seconds, minutes, hours - (the passing of time that is merely a meaningless recording to keep us in our place)
 I stroll through Irish mists (fogs that cover intent) and mull in raptured overtones of arias that rise above my philosophies, yet the time that falls around me (sand in my nostrils, filling my lungs and making me heave with exhaustion) ticking, ticking, ticking (like the wings that rose to Walhalla) a metronome in my mind I feel my life drain in sounds - memories through my bed onto the floor and sleep.

I will think of you ...

On the beach
Where the limeless
Never ending surge
Of water
Changes
The faces of earth
Again and again
Each minute of the day night and always

Then and there when I recall
The change
In this thing called me
The new sides
New forms
New shapes of me.

Which came
When you Washed across
My being

I will think of you ...

Will You Be My Friend

Will you be my friend?
There are many reasons why you never should:
 often shy acutely sensitive,
My fear erupts as anger, I find it hard to give,
I talk about myself when I'm afraid,
And often spend a day without anything to say.
But I will make you laugh
And love you quite a bit
And hold you when you're sad.
I cry a little almost everyday Because I'm more caring than the strangers ever know,
And if at times I show my tender side
(The soft and warmer part I hide)
I wonder,
Will you be my friend?
A friend
Who, far beyond the feebleness of any vow or tie
Will touch the secret place where I am really I.
To know the pain of lips that plead and eyes that weep,
Who, will not run away when you find me in the street
Alone and lying broken by my quota of defeats
But will stop and stay - to tell me of another day,
When I was beautiful.
Will you be my friend?
There are many reasons why you never should:
Often I'm too serious, seldom predictably the same,

Sometimes cold and distant, probably I'll always change.

I bluster and brag, seek attention like a child,
I brood and pout, my anger can be wild.

But I will make you laugh

And love you quite a bit

And be near you when you are afraid.

I shake a little almost everyday

Because I'm more frightened than the strangers ever know,

And if at times I show my trembling side
(The anxious, fearful part I hide)

I wonder,

Will you be my friend?

A friend

Who, when I feel your closeness; feels me push away

And stubbornly will stay to share what's left on such a day

Who, when no one knows my name or calls me on the phone,

When there's no concern for me - what I have or haven't done

And those I've helped and counted on, oh so deftly run.

Who, when there's nothing left but me, stripped of charm and subtlety

Will you be my friend?

For no reason that I know

Except I want you so.

The Senior Stage

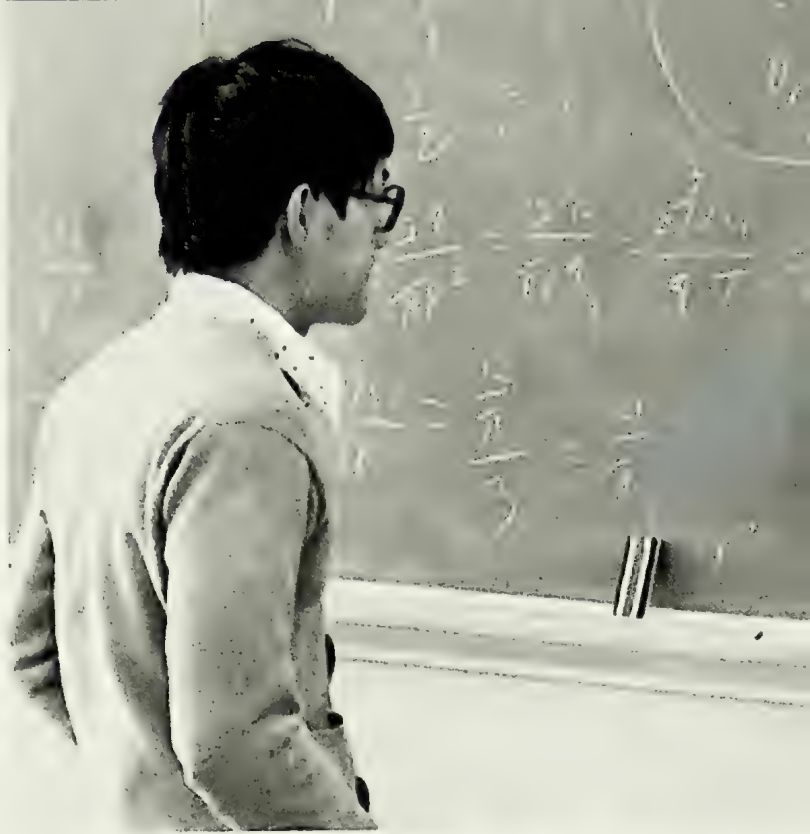

The Senior stage band undertook several endeavors this season under the direction of Mr. Lawson. Their entertainment has been appreciated by Sconaite's at their many performances including a fine one at Awards Night.

Many thanks go out to the students who supported the efforts of the Foster Child Committee. The purchase of our cookies and cakes helped the committee raise enough funds for our foster child Maria Delores Fernandez.

Maria is a 13 year old Argentinian who, because of the generosity of Scona students and staff, now has the opportunity to obtain an education, receive proper medical attention and be able to enjoy life as she never had before.

Maria, and two more children, will be the responsibility of Sconaites for a few more years to come. It is hoped that Scona's sponsorship of foster children throughout the world will become a tradition of which we will all be proud. Again thank you for your past support and thank you to those who will continue to support this most worthy of causes.

A yearbook is merely a book of memories that extends over a year's time, to some it'll mean a great deal but to others it is just a picture book. To me, it is a combination of hard work and long hours, frustration, disagreements, and arguing but the teeniest tad of cooperation and reason makes it all worthwhile. It has been quite an experience for me being your editor this year and I hope that this final result is an appealing one. I would like to thank Robert Lee for his work on our cover design. I would also like to thank the members of my staff for their never ending help and support; my photographers for their terrific pictures and special thanks to Dodi, Karyn and Ms. Lazarowich for without their involvement this book would not be possible.

Junior Girls' Volleyball

Strathcona's junior girls' volleyball team had a successful season. The girls worked hard during practices and competed well. The combination of both allowed them to work their way into the city finals against Harry Ainley. The team played well but could not put everything together and as a result, but to Harry Ainley 3 games to 1. Well played girls.

Senior Girls' Basketball

The senior girls' basketball team did have some success during the year but also had some not too successful moments. The team began the session by competing in the CAHPER Basketball Tournament. They lost in the consolation finals in a close game to Queen Elizabeth. Girls also travelled to Grand Prairie for the Totem Pole Classic where they lost once more in the consolation finals by one point. They ended their regular session by losing in the city quarter finals to Louis St. Laurant in another close game. At least the girls tried hard.

Scona's water polo team had an extremely successful season. This is mainly due to the excellent coaching skills of Mr. Jeffrey Kuntz (alias God). Led by tremendous input from our girls' line, supplemented by our phenomenal boys' line, our team finally defeated great oppositions from the east and north to clinche the city title.

It would take at least 10 pages to list the achievements of Scona's fine track and field team. And this season they have come through on top once again with their 10th consecutive victory in the city finals. Congratulations goes to every member of the team.

A Fond Farewell

A good teacher isn't always measured by the marks his students achieve on their exams. For instance, a select minority are evaluated on other terms: the inevitable and consistently long lines to their tables at meal registration, or the exuberant majority of applause they receive when they are introduced to the school.

Sacramento State teachers have honored this year's graduates by dedicating this yearbook to them. James Gillilan and David Nattress have created a memory not only for the students they have taught and mentored, but also proudly for the school.

James Gillilan, a successful football coach, has dedicated this yearbook to the students of Sacramento State. He has been a teacher for many years and has been successful in his classes, but he feels that the more appreciation there should have been for this approach to teaching.

David Nattress, whose children now number eighteen, including: "Arsenic and Old Lace", "The Diary of Anne Frank", "My Three Angels", and more recently, "Wait Until Dark", and Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream". He has, however, said that his students are his children, and consequently hundreds of students have experienced his true talent - that of making them express themselves to the best of their ability.

Drama has become an institution at Scona, and because of David Nattress, Scona has achieved the reputation of providing quality dramatics.

These two men have left a legacy of caring and professionalism that makes it hard for us to let them go. People, however, do change and therefore, must move on. In this we understand that we must give others the chance to experience the specialness of David Nattress and James Gilfillan.

We wish you only good fortunes in your future endeavors and with undying gratitude bid you farewell.

don't you feel fine

do you care to keep your head in motion close your eyes and open up your ears who you are is only an illusion
and what you are determined by your fears
who you are is only an illusion
and what you are determined by your fears know where you go show yourself the follies of your time have you known the pleasures of giving for the sake of getting nothing loving for the sake of knowing pleasure knowing for the sake of teaching others finding ways to spend your hidden treasures

let yourself go let yourself flow
don't you feel fine ...

do you want to know what I know close your mouth and open up your mind do you want to go where I go or go ahead and listen to the blind know what I know
show yourself the follies of your time
